High School Hottie

Dear Maxim, thank you so much for validating my long-time celeb crush by putting Ashley Tisdale on your May cover! I've been made fun of for watching High School Musical, but I've been in love with the Disney starlet for years, and your pictorial contained all the reasons why.

—Sean, Bay City, MI

Happy to validate your crush, Sean. But as far as your other Disney crushes go, we don't think it's going to work out between you and Goofy. Sorry to break the news.

Hello and Hi-yah!

Greetings from Planet Vegeta. Mind if we punch your face off?

Hey, it's Dan. When not editing Maxim or passed out in an alley, I like to voice cartoon characters engaged in intergalactic kung fu battles. So the fine folks at Funimation, creators of kick-ass anime shows like Fullmetal Alchemist and Dragon Ball Z, invited me to their studio in Flower Mound, Texas. (Yes, it's a real place.) On my tour with CEO Gen Fukunaga, I got in a recording booth and screamed, "Ahhhh!" and "Ugh!" till they politely asked me to stop. I thought I was convincing and eagerly await a callback for a live-action Dragon Ball Z. (I'd be an amazing ball.)

Pick up Dragon Ball Z: Rock the Dragon Edition and Dragon Ball Z Season 1 on Blu-ray.

1. Bacon
2. A good man
3. To-go cups

I would be embarrassed if you looked in my fridge and saw how much mayo is in there.

My spirit animal is Brian from "Family Guy".

The most embarrassing song on my iPod is the theme song to the TV show "Taxi" (I was drunk).

My go-to drink is beautiful bottled American beer.

If I named a sandwich after myself, I would call it the Hungry Kitty, and it would be all meat, no veggies.

The creepiest pickup line I ever heard was "If you were my girlfriend, I would wake up every morning before you and make an oil painting of you sleeping".

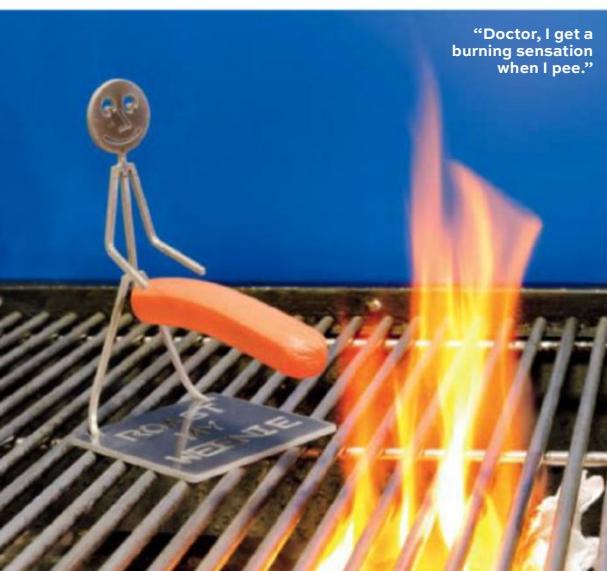

My favorite way to get in trouble is to take drunk people's phones and snap "interesting" pictures with them.

In 10 years I will be wondering why Joan Rivers works more than me.

STATES OF DISUNION

If at First You Don't Secede...

With residents from all 50 states petitioning to break away from the U.S., we reveal the leading candidates for secession and what's in store if they get their wish. Fingers crossed for Florida.

1. TEXAS

Number of petitioners: 124,353 (0.48% of pop.)
Likely president: Roger Clemens
National anthem: "Cotton Eye Joe" by Rednex
Chief exports: Rest-stop trinkets extolling the country's bigness; oil
Roadblock: Austin. Residents of the city started their own counter-petition to secede from Texas if Texas splits from America. Damn hipsters!

2. LOUISIANA

Number of petitioners: 38,637 (0.84% of pop.)
Likely president: Swamp People's Troy Landry
National anthem: "Born on the Bayou" by Creedence Clearwater Revival
Chief exports: Swamp People episodes; soybeans
Roadblock: Bobby Jindal. The Republican governor is anti-secession, saying, "Whatever our political differences, we are American first."

3. TENNESSEE

Number of petitioners: 32,431 (0.51% of pop.)
Likely president: Definitely not Al Gore
National anthem: "I'm Movin' On" by Elvis
Chief exports: Dolly Parton's cleavage; whiskey
Roadblock: Lack of support. The Nashville Tea Party president won't even sign the petition. But they get style points for their five-word secession request: "Helping the People of Tennessee."

4. NORTH CAROLINA

Number of petitioners: 31,622 (0.33% of pop.)
Likely president: Mike Krzyzewski
National anthem: Dale Earnhardt Sr.'s engine revving on a loop
Chief exports: Unfinished furniture; tobacco
Roadblock: Themselves. The state constitution prohibits secession, reading, "This State shall ever remain a member of the American Union."

5. SOUTH CAROLINA

Number of petitioners: 31,622 (0.68% of pop.)
Likely president: Stephen Colbert
National anthem: "Let Her Cry" by Hootie & the Blowfish
Chief exports: Hootie & the Blowfish; tires
Roadblock: Supreme Court. In 1869 it ruled unilateral secession unconstitutional. Apparently, America is an "indestructible union." Go figure.

6. FLORIDA

Number of petitioners: 36,609 (0.19% of pop.)
Likely president: Jeb Bush
National anthem: "I Just Can't Wait to Be King" by Simba the lion (from The Lion King)
Chief exports: Jokes about the state being the shape of a penis; citrus fruit
Roadblock: A house divided. In 2008 pols tried to split the state into North and South Florida.

HOT MESS

Bad Girl of the Month Club

Gals you can take home to Mom—provided Mom is a parole officer.

Name: Renata Shamrakova
Age: 28 Charges: Grand larceny, identity theft, and obstruction, among others. As the personal assistant to an N.Y.C. hedge-fund bigwig, she swindled her boss out of $821,000 by opening credit cards in his name, then forging checks to pay them off. ## We Go Hunting Sharks!

Facing an army of toothy terrors with pro wrestler ERIC YOUNG? We're gonna need a bigger boat.

→ “Showtime” Eric Young has battled hulking wrestlers in the ring, alligators on the bayou, even hurricanes on the open water. But today, sitting in the Gomez—a rickety two-man skiff bobbing behind a shrimp boat about six miles off the Florida Gulf Coast—the quick-witted and impressively bearded pro wrestler is confronting his most fearsome foe of all.

“Mike the shrimp boat captain saw a 450-pound bull shark hanging around earlier,” says Young, noting there’s also an 18- to 21-foot hammerhead named Old Hitler lurking somewhere nearby. He’s here to catch sharks for Animal Planet’s Off the Hook: Extreme Catches. I’m here because he dared Maxim to join in the heart-stopping “fun.” I put fun in quotations because I’m terrified.

We’re on a tiny boat, sitting inches above the surface, and just recently a Florida fisherman caught a bull shark with a two-headed bull-shark fetus inside it. These aren’t just man-eaters; they’re fucking mutants!

As we wait to see what shows up to feast on the shrimp boat’s spillover, Young talks about Off the Hook, which features the admittedly amateur angler enthusiastically jumping into unusual and typically pants-shittingly dangerous types of fishing—everything from free-diving under ice in his homeland of Canada to taking a fuel-cell-equipped Jet Ski 30 miles offshore during a hurricane. “I’m a really stubborn person, which can be good sometimes—it’s probably why I’m a wrestler and why I have a television show, but it’s also why I have scars all over my body,” says Young. “I’ve been beat up on this show worse than I’ve been beat up in wrestling, and wrestling’s as physical as it gets.”

As if on cue, the sharks show up to our chum party. They circle like drunk college kids around a Crave Case, occasionally breaching the surface for a sniff. I’m not sure how big

1. Off the Hook's Eric Young distracts our writer and goes straight in for a crotch shot.
2. Sharks are some of the dumbest animals on the planet, yet they still managed to evade a Maxim writer's best attempts to catch one.
3. “So...do you like gladiator movies?”

they are, but in my mind they seem like swimming school buses with thousands of rows of razor-sharp teeth.

As I try not to cry, Young tries to hook one. Time passes, swears are sworn, and in the end Young comes up empty-handed. And I couldn’t be happier. Being on a boat inches from these saw-toothed death machines is one thing—to have one on board with us is a whole ‘nother. As the predators continue gobbling up the chum and throwing their fins in the air like they just don’t care, I ask Young how the show compares to life in the ring. “Um, I don’t know,” he replies with a mischievous smirk. “Why do we do any of this? Because it’s dangerous!”

Get the Shakes

I scream, you scream, we all scream for this boozy milkshake made by WILLIAM WARD, beverage director for the Beach at Dream Downtown Hotel in N.Y.C. Brain freeze!

HONEY AND ALMOND MILKSHAKE

"This drink is a grown-up version of a milkshake that can be enjoyed year-round, but especially during summer," says Ward. "The floral qualities of honey, the sweetness of almonds, and the rich flavor of vanilla all go perfectly with the flavors found in Evan Williams Honey Reserve."

- 1 oz. Evan Williams Honey Reserve
- ½ oz. amaretto liqueur
- ¼ oz. honey
- ½ oz. unsweetened almond milk
- 1 scoop softened vanilla ice cream
- Crushed almonds (for garnish)

Combine honey, almond milk, and both liqueurs in a cocktail shaker and stir until honey is completely dissolved. Add ice and ice cream and shake. Pour into a tall glass and top with crushed almonds.

This ain't your grandmother's milkshake. (Unless your grandmother really likes to party.)

Dive Bar of the Month

The Railroad Inn, Valley Stream, N.Y.

Under the Long Island Rail Road tracks is a hole-in-the-wall commuter bar where punk bands are drowned out by the trains overhead. Grab a beer and play a round of Ms. Pac-Man while you wait for your train: You'll know it's here when the bar starts shaking. 151 S. Franklin Ave.

Wolverine's Most Embarrassing Hits

On July 26, The Wolverine will prove the hero's badassness once again. But his 40-year history in comics hasn't been without shame. Here, the hairy X-Man's most mortifying moments.

1 Careless Whiskers

Wolverine's entrance came in The Incredible Hulk (Vol. 1) #181, wearing a face mask with whiskers, like an adorable widdle kitty. The costume couldn't have been less intimidating unless it came with a squeaky toy.

3 Centenarian Creeper

In Ultimate Spider-Man (Vol. 1) #66 and #67, Wolverine and Peter Parker pull a Freaky Friday and swap bodies. Old Man Wolverine (as Peter) is forced to go to high school, hang out with pimply teens, and try to bang 15-year-old MaryJane Watson. Do age of consent laws apply to immortals?

2 Highly Illogical

When the X-Men faced off with the Star Trek crew in Star Trek/X-Men, Wolverine tried to pummel Spock, who thoroughly owned him by Vulcan-nerve-pinchng his ass into submission. Live long and STFU, Wolvie.

4 Mr. Castrato

In The Punisher (Vol. 3) #17, Punisher shoots off Wolverine's face and balls, then flattens him with a steamroller. His wiener grows back, which makes his mutant healing factor the ultimate form of Viagra.

Look, a Book!

Super Graphic: A Visual Guide to the Comic Book Universe, by TIM LEONG (out July 16), answers your dorkiest comic questions in graph form. Our favorites...

THE BATMAN THEME SONG QUANTIFIED:

- "Batman!"
- "Da"

WHY THE NINJA TURTLES MAKE FUN OF DONATELLO:

- He spends his time studying science.
- He spends his time playing with his staff.

WHAT MAKES NICK FURY SO INTIMIDATING:

- Eye patch
- Leading the nation's most powerful security force

American Military Secret For Sale

Once used exclusively by the U.S. government's most covert operatives, the top-secret tactical technology of the Stauer Recon Tritium Watch is finally available to the general public

You have a mission. Get to the drop point immediately. Your man leaves the country in four hours. "Now or never," he tells you. So you agree on a swap. You skip the underground parking garage and do your business in broad daylight. Two men. One black box. And a firm handshake to seal the deal. "Watch your back," he says. "This is a serious piece of hardware and plenty of people are going to come looking for it."

The secret is out. Not long ago, a timepiece like the Stauer Recon Tritium Watch was restricted to America's most elite fighting forces. If you wanted to wear one, you literally had to earn it. But now, the formerly classified tactical technology inside the Recon has been cleared for civilian service. And today you can put one on your wrist for three covert payments of only $99!

Darkness doesn't stand a chance. Powered by a precision Swiss quartz movement, the Recon is like no watch you've ever worn before. The GTLS (gaseous tritium light source) technology inside was used in advanced military equipment and watches for years, making it almost impossible to find for civilian use. Even though it's more available today, you rarely find quality for under $600. Only Stauer can deliver a tritium watch for this price without compromising a millimeter on the integrity.

A military classic in black and white. Designed for stealth operations, the high-contrast markers are bound to attract attention. The easy-to-read dial also features a rotating bezel, with a light source at the 12 o'clock spot. Its lightweight polycarbonate case is crafted from a nearly unbreakable acrylic used in bulletproof glass. The Stauer Recon secures with a textured black silicone band and is water-resistant to 10 ATM.

Your satisfaction is 100% GUARANTEED. Bring home the Stauer Recon Tritium for 30 days and if it doesn't measure up, send it back for a full refund of your purchase price. Stylish in the daylight. Always lit in utter darkness. The best kept secret of military timekeeping is out!

WATCH SPECS: GTLS technology on board - Lightweight polycarbonate case - Textured black silicone band fits wrists 7 1/4"-9 1/4" - Water-resistant to 10 ATM

Kevin Hart

The diminutive comic's concert film, Let Me Explain, hits theaters this month. Also? He's about to die.

So how do you want to go?

I want to go out like I came in: naked and screaming until someone stuffs a titty in my mouth.

Do you have any death-bed confessions?

Help! I'm fucking dying!

Your new stand-up flick is called Let Me Explain.

Before you go, anything you would like to have explained to you?

Yeah. Why in the hell can't the Philadelphia Eagles ever win the fucking Super Bowl?

Will you be going to heaven or hell, and why?

I will initially be sent to hell, but they'll soon find out that I don't meet the height requirement. It's a well-known fact that tall people are evil.

Will you still perform stand-up there?

I performed in a bowling alley before while people were still bowling. Cut the check and I will perform anywhere.

IM IN THE KITCHEN, YAMS EVERYWHERE!

JUST MADE A JUG, GOT BANDS EVERYWHERE.

Which deceased comic would you be most excited to see perform in the afterlife?

I would love to see Robin Harris do his thing. The more important question is, who would be my date to the show, Aaliyah or Whitney Houston?

If you get to heaven, are you still 5'2", or do you get to choose your height?

First of all, I'm 5'4". Secondly, that is an awful rumor being spread about me, that I'm only 5'2". Thirdly, I don't have a third statement. I just know you always have to make a third point when you count out points.

Was there anyone on Earth you wanted to punch in the face?

I want to punch the mid-get who robbed me when I was 12 years old. I really liked that bike.

What's your last meal?

Twelve chicken wings with blue cheese fed to me by the one-armed stripper I met in Cumberland, Kentucky. I never knew that you don't need arms to strip...

While you were alive, what did you spend the most money on?

Very expensive designer shoes to hide my very ugly feet.

What's the wildest thing you ever did while you were alive?

I ripped that tag off of a mattress.

What woman did you always want to sleep with?

The lady at the DMV. I love women with attitude.

Describe your funeral.

I will have a chocolate waterfall that fills my coffin and Milli Vanilli rapping a z Chainz song. Everybody has to come wearing polka dots.

You've joked about the anxiety of being a pall-bearer. Are you still going to make people schlepp around your coffin?

No! I'm small enough that they can roll my coffin out on top of a couple of skateboards.

Got any last words?

An unemployed court jester is nobody's fool.

Malin's model-singer little sister proves that talent—and pantslessness—runs in the family.

→ Considering you and Malin are sisters, is it safe to assume that your parents are ridiculously attractive?

My dad is pretty lucky. He's been married to two beautiful women—Malin's mom and then my mom. I guess Malin and I got the best of both of them.

You were born and bred in Sweden. What's the most Swedish thing about you?

Swedish girls are really independent and strong, and I'm that way. When I date American guys, they want to take care of you all the time—take you to dinner and pay for your food—but I like to take care of myself.

Besides being a cheap date, you're also a singer in the duo Jaxx. Tell us about it.

It's very indie rock, indie pop. Our music has a really good vibe; you feel something when you listen to it.

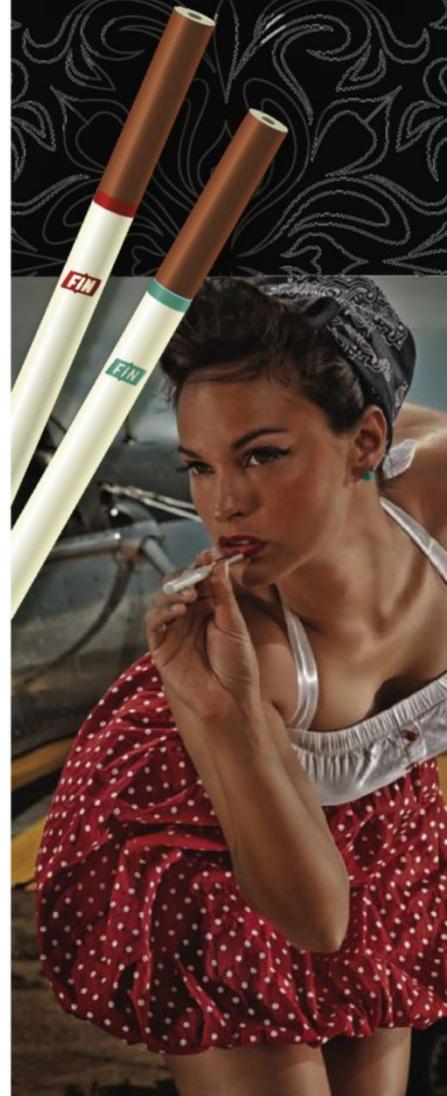

Is your song "Kiss Master" about your own smooching abilities?

It's about when you look at someone's lips and imagine what it would be like to kiss them. I'm pretty picky when it comes to kissing, and I would say I'm pretty good at it.

Could a woman have real breasts from another person grafted on?

—Frank Novak

Yes, but it's healthier to explore other jiggly options. "When you transplant tissue from a donor, the recipient takes medications that suppress the immune system, to prevent rejection of tissue your body may perceive as foreign," explains Umang Mehta, M.D., a San Francisco-area plastic surgeon. "The risks, like increased infections, outweigh the benefits of transplanting breast tissue." Plus, "They're silicone" sounds better than "They're Grandma's."

What would happen if we launched nuclear bombs into the sun?

—Christian Szabo

"Nothing, since the sun's heat would vaporize them before they could reach it," says Jose Lopez, assistant physics professor at Seton Hall University. "Their impact would be similar to a few thousand raindrops falling into the ocean." Raindrops that would turn sea turtles into fire-breathing monsters, that is.

Is it possible to unplug the whole Internet?

—James Sutton

To the chagrin of the type-writer industry, no. At least not without the cooperation of every single Internet user. "The Web is composed of about 75 million network nodes, so even if you crippled a million nodes, that's less than two percent," says Gregory Dawson, assistant professor of information systems at Arizona State University.

My wife asked if I would give it to her "doggy style." So I took a dump on the floor and chewed up her shoes. —JASON DOWLING

A man buys a lie-detecting robot that slaps people who fib and tests it out at dinner. He asks his son, "Did you go to school today?" The son replies, "Yes," and the robot slaps him. The son says, "All right, I went to the movies." The father asks, "What did you see?" and the son replies, "Toy Story 3." The robot slaps him again, and the son says, "OK, OK! It was Anal Gang Bang 3." His father snorts and says, "When I was your age we didn't know what porn was." This time the robot slaps the father. The mother sputters in her coffee and retorts, "Ha! # How To

Ride a 100-Foot Wave

Record-breaking surfer GARRETT McNAMARA takes you on a ride.

- 1 Stalk Storms
You have to find a spot where waves can reach their full potential and you have good offshore winds. Nazaré, Portugal is the holy grail of monster waves, so we'll get on the Internet and track storms as they are approaching the coast.
- 2 Get the Right Gear
Equipment is essential for survival. For towing into giant waves, you want a small board, about 20 pounds. Your wet suit is key, too. Body Glove made me the most amazing survival suit for riding the 100-foot wave, so I knew I was coming home.
- 3 Learn to Inhale
Right before you fall, take a full breath from your belly to your chest and then tilt your head back to open your lungs and get more air. Once you're underwater, completely relax your entire body until the pounding is over and swim to the top.
- 4 Buddy Up
Heading out with a surfer who's better than you will bring your level up a lot faster. I generally recommend going out with at least one friend, but you know, if you get to the beach and the waves are perfect and there isn't a soul around, just go for it.
- 5 Get a Ride
I love to stand up and paddle out, but if there's a lot of wind it can cast you off the board and throw you into the wave. When you're going for an 80-foot monster, paddling gets dangerous, so towing out is a safer choice. That's what I did for the big one.
- 6 Commit
Get to the right spot and paddle as hard as you can to get the wave before it breaks, throw yourself over the ledge, and stand up. You've got to commit. Every aspect of it is exhilarating, but the goal for every surfer is to get in the barrel—time stands still in there.

Kiss frontman PAUL STANLEY helps you enjoy your time in the mud.

PACK WISELY

"Don't go anywhere without Purell, condoms, and breath mints."

PICK A PARTNER

"Don't go with a large group. A festival is not a time to see democracy in action; it's a time for you and one person to agree on a strategy."

FIND THE TURNTABLES

"Some bands don't bring their all to festivals, so look for a tent with a DJ. There should be a lot of ecstasy in there, and from what I understand, even a dog passing gas sounds good on those drugs."

DON'T BE A DICK

"You want to get your money's worth, so don't throw shit at the stage. Also, let the people who are paid to sing do the singing. And if you want to do your '60s freak dance or some flower-child thing, move to the side."

SCORE A BACKSTAGE PASS

"Other than the photos of people dancing in the mud with hot topless chicks, the festival scene looks miserable. So if you're not in the front row, try to convince one of those hot girls to wrangle a backstage pass for each of you."

Spot Sport Fakes

"Sports memorabilia is the biggest reproduction market, so steer clear. A lot of footballs signed by Joe Namath are actually signed by some grandma in Detroit."

Flea Market

Guerrilla Warfare

"Take the price tag off what you want and hand it to the cashier. If someone else is interested, by the time they find the seller and find out the price, you've paid for it."

Know Your Market

"Antiques dealers won't buy a torn-up leather chair with a roached back support, but a set designer might, to have a rock star sit in on a shoot or for a music video."

Land Your Dream Job

BRAD BAKER, president and CEO of game-testing company PowerUP Games, on turning your hobby into a payday.

SKIP COLLEGE

"Game testing is a way to break into the industry, so we look for candidates straight out of high school or with their GEDs. Some kids go to college and then realize no one hires a recent grad with a game-design degree, because they have people with eight years of experience who can do it better. So save your $50,000!"

OBEY THE GEEK LAWS

"Even the best guys need to follow directions, because so much of testing is top secret. We told one great tester never to go through a certain door—there was a different project in that room. One day he decided he had to peek. By the time he got back from lunch, his ID card was deactivated, and we were waiting for him by the door with his last check."

BE ALL THUMBS

"We assess interviewees' interest in video games, not game playing. If they're passionate about gaming, we can make them great testers. If they just play Halo 4 nonstop, they're harder to deal with. We want a guy who can break the game and discuss it with a group, not get caught up in a competition. If you have to be the one who wins, you'll get fired."

CHUG RED BULL

"For one game we had 75 people divided into three shifts, playing 24 hours straight for five months. We brought in food and soda to try and make it easier on them, but that was extreme! Normally, testers should be prepared for at least three months of serious overtime a year—I mean 14-hour days with just a few hours off to sleep."

Host a Dinner Party

Jersey Shore alum VINNY GUADAGNINO throws a big fat Sunday dinner, Staten Island style.

Immediately Assault Their Talk Holes.

"From the second guests walk in, my family's like, 'Have a seat, have some wine,' and we start shoving things in their mouths until everyone feels comfortable and opens up."

Encourage Gambling.

"Instead of worrying about awkward silences before the food comes out, put cards or a dartboard out and people will gravitate toward those games naturally. It's good to keep people active until they're occupied with eating."

Keep the Conversation Light, Stupid.

"It's a cliché, but don't talk politics or religion. If my grandma hears you missed church on Sunday, she'll have a heart attack."

Don't Turn It Into Top Chef.

"Sometimes people try to get all fancy when they're having guests over for dinner, and then everyone just ends up eating the salad."

Have a Bed Ready.

"If a guest gets too drunk, put them in a bed with a glass of water nearby and let 'em pass out. Usually someone will wake up at our house the next morning in their boxers, and my aunt is waiting to serve them eggs in the kitchen."

Corvette C7 Stingray Convertible

AMERICAN MUSCLE

Just like rock'n'roll, Sly Stallone, and Double-Double Animal Style cheeseburgers, muscle cars are uniquely American. Climb aboard as we floor the new guard of the meanest, sleekest, and most powerful pieces of domestic-born machinery.

Corvette C7 Stingray Convertible Continued

→ The biggest domestic car launch of the year—all right, of the century—the seventh generation 'Vette is, in our not-so-humble opinion, the best-looking yet. So when the topless version was unveiled at the New York International Auto Show this spring, we were there with our jaws on the floor. As the first model in decades to be tagged with the iconic "Stingray" designation—and with the most powerful standard engine in the model's history—it's clear the good folks at Chevy know they've created something special. (So does NASCAR team owner Rick Hendrick, who dropped a million bucks on the first Stingray convertible to roll off the line.)

Dodge Challenger SRT8 392

→ If you looked up “muscle car” in the dictionary (they still make those, right?), you would see an image of this iconic Mopar model. It has more power than ever, with a massive 392-cubic-inch (or 6.4-liter, for all you Commies out there) Hemi V-8, but besides its raw speed, just look at the thing. Has a sculpted piece of metal ever been more menacing?

JUSTINE

"There is nothing I like more than an adrenaline rush and a need for speed: 0-60 in 3.3 seconds with a top speed of 206 mph? The Viper surely turns me on."

SRT Viper TA

→ If there's one car that can legitimately challenge the Stingray's domestic supremacy, it's this badass brainchild of Chrysler's insane Street Racing Technology division. The TA version—TA stands for "time attack," another term for racetrack time trials—takes the already mind-bogglingly fast Viper and soups it up even more (think retuned dampers, springs, and stabilizer bars as well as a lightweight carbon-fiber X-brace that replaces the standard aluminum unit). Only 33 lucky people will be able to call a Viper TA their own, and we hope they like orange...cause that's the only color this monster comes in.

Cadillac CTS

1 / It's been 17 years since the last rear-wheel-drive performance sedan rolled out of a Chevy factory (remember, you were dancing to the Macarena?), so we could not be happier that the SS has arrived to fill that void. Powered by a giant 6.2-liter V-8—the same engine used in the last-generation Corvette—the family-friendly four-door delivers an extremely impressive 415 horses. It's perfect for packing up the kids...or running away from them forever. (Just tell 'em you're going out for milk.)

2 / The current-generation CTS-V—the one that goes 0-60 in four seconds—is one of the most fun cars ever to park in the Maxim garage. Now Caddy is introducing the next-generation CTS model for 2014, and it looks like the legacy of awesomeness will continue. The car, the lightest in its class, is upgradable to a powerful twin-turbo V-6 that produces 420 horsepower, and its direct high-pressure fuel injectors have the potential to get this bad boy up to 170 mph. Speed and beauty, thy name is Caddy.

Chevrolet Camaro Z/28

→ Camaro. Need we say more? Well, if you insist...The Z/28 was last produced by Chevy in 2002, and the long-feared-on-the-streets model is finally making a return, leaner (it's 300 pounds lighter than a Camaro ZL1) and meaner (500 horses, anyone?) than ever. How barebones and track-ready is the car? Let's put it this way: Air conditioning is optional. In a world where you can get a GPS, electric seats, and multiple speakers (the Z/28 has only one, for a seat belt chime) in a bargain-basement Hyundai, this is a throwback to a whole different era.

Ford Mustang Shelby GT500

→ There's one number to keep in mind when discussing the automotive incarnation of speed god Carroll Shelby's legacy: 662. That's how many horses the supercharged 5.8-liter engine churns out, meaning the GT500 has the most powerful V-8 of any production car in the world. While that number alone would put this monster on any list of supercars, it's the intangible ferocity you feel emanating from the machine—a former Maxim cover model—that makes it unique. If America were a car, it would be a Shelby Mustang.

MEGA MACHINES

Ford Atlas

1 / “Built Ford Tough” is more than just a catchy marketing slogan, and the company’s truck of the not-so-distant future is proof. It has a next-generation EcoBoost (Ford’s name for its efficient-but-powerful engines) that will create leading fuel efficiency and capability. Inside, light-weight seating allows for extra legroom, and “floating” instrument pods and glove-friendly buttons keep everything nice and pushable. Most importantly, though, the thing looks like a goddamn beast. Ford, let’s put this thing on the market already, shall we?

3 / Jeep has been at the forefront of SUV technology ever since your grandpa was patrolling the North African front during WWII. Well, they’re pushing the boundaries yet again with the 2014 Grand Cherokee SRT. It’s the most powerful (that is, most fun) version ever made, with the same giant 6.4-liter Hemi V-8 under its hood as the Challenger SRT. The exterior is manlier than ever—we particularly like the blacked-out headlamps—and the interior has all the leather, suede, and technology your spoiled heart desires.

From sassy Samantha Micelli on Who's the Boss? to fantastical Phoebe on Charmed to sexy Savi on her new series, Mistresses, Alyssa Milano has ruled what we watch on TV with a beautiful fist. But not only is she crazy-gorgeous—she can also talk your ear off about the Dodgers' bullpen and cook you a button-popping Italian feast that'll have you begging for mercy. Years ago she rocked our world with a cover shoot during Maxim's inaugural year of existence, and now she's back to rock it all over again. Grazie, Alyssa!

You've been in the spotlight since you were a kid on Who's the Boss?. Was it weird growing up in front of the entire country?

I don't really remember the specifics of it. People will bring up old episodes, and I'll be like, nope, don't remember doing that one. At. All. But it wasn't weird, because I didn't know any different. You know, I went through puberty like everyone else; it only got embarrassing when the show would take what was going on with me and write it into the show, like "Samantha's First Bra." It was like, OK, guys, do we really need to do this? But what an awesome time stamp!

Right. Most people have photo albums, but you have hundreds of hours of...

Bad fashion!

So many child actors get screwed up. How did you manage to survive?

I hope it's talent. That was an era when TV child actors just didn't work after their show was over. I think Christina Applegate and I are the only two who maintained some sort of career path past the shows that launched us. But I have a great family, and I look at a lot of these kids who struggle in the industry and think they'd have struggled no matter what they did.

Italian dads are notoriously protective, and you had your own and Tony Danza.

Yup, I had two! But here's the thing: I didn't go to high school, so my entire life was on set. Their job was a piece of cake! I wasn't being asked to the prom, and I didn't start dating until I was 16 or 17.

You had another notable pretend dad in Commando. What was daddy Arnie like?

I remember Arnold Schwarzenegger being very nice and helping me with my homework. I recently met someone who asked me, "You know that sandwich you give Arnold in the beginning of the movie?"

What was on that?" I was like, "I have no idea! Probably bologna and cheese."

The last time you were on our cover was 15 years ago. How'd this shoot compare?

The whole day was really fun! The theme was summer, sexy, sophisticated. I love the beach, but I'm afraid of the water.

Really? Sharks or waves?

Waves! But I love the way the beach makes you feel insignificant. You really appreciate the beauty of the world.

Your new show is called Mistresses. Sounds racy!

Honestly, after the first few episodes the title is kind of irrelevant. In the first episode my character cheats on her husband, but the rest of the season is about her dealing with the fallout.

You famously played Amy Fisher, one of the most notorious mistresses ever.

Well, she was not mentally stable. I think there's a sickness to someone who shoots another human being in the head, whereas Savi is just trying to find her way because she fucked up.

You're a baseball fan, right?

I'm a Dodgers fan, and I've had season tickets for over 10 years, but the past few years were pretty depressing. Now it's like a whole new team, and I'm thrilled. My ideal date is any sporting event.

Once and for all, please settle the question that has plagued mankind for decades: Who was the boss, Tony or Angela?

Tony. Tony for sure.

THIS FOURTH OF JULY, YOU HAVE THE INALIENABLE RIGHT TO LIFE, LIBERTY, AND THE PURSUIT OF HOMETOWN HOTIES!

by STEPHANIE RADVAN Photographs by MARLEY KATE

Red, White & Blue

Dessie Mitchenson

Apollo, Pennsylvania

How do you typically spend the Fourth of July?

I usually just go down to the beach with my family and set off some fireworks.

What U.S. president would you most want to party with?

George Washington, because if we got drunk maybe he'd let me try on his wig.

Nude beach: yea or nay?

I'm not sure if I'd participate, but I'd definitely go check one out.

What artist is a must on your summer playlist?

I don't know what it is, but something about the summertime always makes me want to listen to country, so I'd have to say Kenny Chesney or Blake Shelton.

What's one necessary stop on a cross-country road trip?

I'm actually doing one this summer, and I'd love to stop somewhere in the Midwest and camp out for a night under the stars.

Brittney Alger

Biloxi, Mississippi

What's your craziest Fourth of July memory?

One time in high school we were shooting off fireworks, and a friend of mine lit himself on fire! He was fine, so it was kind of hilarious.

What U.S. president would you most want to party with?

Bill Clinton...but I'm not going to say what we'd do, because he's only known for two things! My next choice would be Abe Lincoln. He was a freakin' boss.

What was your best summer job?

I worked at the pool at the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Biloxi right when it opened, so there were a lot of artists coming in. I just had to set up the cabanas, so it was like getting paid to have fun.

What do you need for a great summer BBQ?

I don't eat burgers or hot dogs, so there has to be some chicken, and I've got to have a Jack Daniel's and Diet Coke in my hand.

What do you need for a great summer BBQ?
Just good friends, family, some apple pie, and a little moonshine.

What's your craziest Fourth of July memory?

When I was a junior in high school, I spent the Fourth of July in the hospital because I almost killed myself in a tubing accident on the lake. Somehow my legs were behind my body and over my head. I ended up pulling every single muscle in my back, and I couldn't walk for two weeks.

Fireworks or sparklers?

Definitely fireworks. You need the loud boom to make it a party.

What's the worst sunburn you've ever had?

I fell asleep on a lawn chair after a few drinks, and by the time I woke up I was completely red on one side and pale on the other. Thankfully I was lying on my stomach!

What artist is a must on your summer playlist?

Luke Bryan's Tailgates & Tanlines. Yes, it's country!

Shannon Ihrke

Walker, Minnesota

What was your best summer job?

Before joining the Marine Corps, I worked at a tiki bar. We don't have a lot of tiki bars in Minnesota, so that was the place to be!

Who is the sexiest U.S. president ever?

John F. Kennedy was definitely the hottest. I mean, if Marilyn Monroe is after you, you've got something going on!

How many hot dogs can you eat in one sitting?

A solid five for sure, with buns and all the trimmings. I'm a total fat kid at heart.

What's the worst sunburn you've ever had?

One summer I went horseback riding and paired my jeans with a teeny-tiny tank top, which wasn't a good idea, because I ended up with an insanely weird version of a farmer's tan.

What song is a must on your summer playlist?

I've got to have Jimmy Buffett's "Margaritaville."

What do you need for a great summer BBQ?

I've got to have Texas BBQ, beer, fireworks, and a waterslide.

What was your best summer job?

Working at a Sonic drive-in in high school. I grew up in such a small town that it was really the only place that hired teenagers, so I got to work with a bunch of my friends and wear roller skates on special occasions.

What's a necessary stop on a cross-country road trip?

I'd have to say the 9/11 Memorial. If you're in New York, there's no excuse not to see that.

How many hot dogs can you eat in one sitting?

If we're talking about foot-longs, I could only do one, but it would also be loaded with grilled onions, jalapeños, ketchup, mustard...I don't go the pansy "just ketchup" route when it comes to my hot dogs.

Nude beach: yea or nay?

Yea. Nude beaches are fun, but you have to be prepared for an element of creepy. One time as I was leaving, a guy thanked me for coming!

The star of TLC's Breaking Amish packed her bonnet and moved to New York City to pursue a modeling career—starting with Maxim.

STYLING, ROSE GARCIA; HAIR AND MAKEUP, RIKI SHIMADA USING MAC

How did it feel stepping out of Amish clothes for the first time?

Before I had even signed a contract with a modeling agency, I did a test shoot to see if I could photograph well, and the first outfit they put me in was a bathing suit! I have to admit it was a little intimidating, but now I enjoy doing it.

Are most Amish women in such amazing shape?

There are definitely a lot of Amish women who have great bodies, because they work hard. They also eat really healthy, since they grow their own food. That's one big thing I miss about home, being able to garden and take care of plants.

You can always get a cactus for your New York apartment.

That's true. Now that it's warm I love taking my bulldog to Central Park and spending the afternoon there reading a book.

That's a wholesome hobby.

Well, anybody who's watched the show knows that taking on unexpected adventures can get me into trouble!

Do you have any secret talents that may not have been caught on-camera on Breaking Amish?

I can whip a guy's ass playing Ping-Pong. My parents bought me a table for my 10th birthday, so I've had a lot of practice. I can also bake amazing cookies.

Have any suitors been lucky enough to sample these cookies?

A guy would have to prove himself to me before I'd bake him something special, like my peanut butter blossoms. Most of the time I just make them for my roommates and me.

We would sure love to live with you.

I'm actually a great roommate because I do my own cleaning and cooking, and I can fix almost anything. That's definitely a benefit of being raised Amish.

THE KING RIB

TIME	10 minutes
SERVES	4 sandwiches

- 1 lb. leftover rib meat (horizontally cut off the bones from one rack)
- 1 cup BBQ sauce
- 4 6-inch sandwich rolls or buns, split
- 8 dill pickle slices
- ½ cup finely chopped sweet onion

1. Wrap meat in foil and store in refrigerator. When ready to make the sandwiches, cut meat into four equal portions and warm on a baking sheet in the oven or toaster oven at 350°F or in a large skillet over medium heat, 3–4 minutes each side.

2. Pour the sauce into a large shallow bowl. When the pork is thoroughly heated, use tongs to dip each piece of meat into the sauce to completely cover on both sides.

3. Lay one pork piece on the bottom of each roll. Arrange two slices of pickles on top of the pork. Scatter 2 Tbs. of the onions over the pickles and pork. Cover each sandwich with the top of the roll. Serve immediately or, if you like, microwave each sandwich for 15 seconds to give it that “fresh from under the fast-food lights” heat.

TIME	30 minutes
SERVES	8

- 4 Tbs. unsalted butter
- 1 lb. elbow macaroni
- 2 Tbs. all-purpose flour
- 3 cups milk
- 2½ cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1 lb. leftover rib meat

1. Generously butter a 13"x9" broiler-safe baking pan with 2 Tbs. butter.
2. Cook macaroni to al dente per package directions.
3. Melt remaining butter. Stir in flour and cook till it forms a paste and begins to brown. Whisk in milk and bring mixture to a bubble to thicken. Remove from heat. Whisk in two cups of cheese; season with salt and pepper.

4. Preheat broiler. Drain macaroni and return it to the pot. Add cheese sauce and stir in the meat. Pour baby back mac into the prepared baking pan and sprinkle on remaining cheese. Broil till cheese is golden brown on top, 3–4 minutes. Let cool, covered with foil, for 15 minutes.

SMOKED BRISKET

TIME	14 hours
SERVES	8–10

- 8–10 lbs. beef brisket
- 2 cups Bub City Brisket Rub (1 part coarse black pepper, 1 part kosher salt, ¼ part cayenne pepper)

1. Preheat smoker filled with hickory to 225°F.
2. Coat brisket with the rub.

3. Let brisket sit at room temperature until the rub begins to “sweat,” about an hour.

4. Place the brisket fat side down and let it smoke for 12 hours. After letting it rest for one hour, slice against the grain and enjoy!

BARBECUE SMOKED CABBAGE

TIME	6 hours
SERVES	4

- 1 head green cabbage
- 1 Tbs. salt
- 1 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tsp. garlic powder
- 1 tsp. onion powder
- ½ cup unsalted butter

1. Using a sharp knife, core the cabbage, carving out the tough white bottom. Rinse the cored cabbage and pull off any wilted leaves. Sprinkle the salt, pepper, garlic powder, and onion powder into the hollowed center. Place the stick of butter inside the center, where the core was removed, and over the spices you just sprinkled.

2. Wrap the head of cabbage in aluminum foil so the core end is up. Using more foil, form a base so the cabbage remains upright. Place the wrapped cabbage on the smoker. Cover and smoke for 4–6 hours, until the cabbage is soft. Unwrap and discard any blackened leaves. Cut the cabbage into quarters and serve alongside the smoked brisket.

FIVE-SPICE LAMB BURGER

	TIME	2 hours
	SERVES	4

FIVE-SPICE AIOLI

- ½ cup mayonnaise
- Juice of 1 lime
- 2 tsp. five-spice powder

In a small bowl mix ingredients. Store in refrigerator.

CUCUMBER RELISH

- 1 tsp. coriander seeds
- 1 Tbs. vegetable oil
- ½ red onion, finely diced
- 1 red finger chili, seeded and diced
- ¼ cup white wine vinegar
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 English cucumber, seeded and diced
- Kosher salt
- ½ bunch fresh mint, stemmed and chopped

1. Toast the coriander in a sauté pan over medium-high heat until fragrant. Drizzle in the oil, add onion, and cook, stirring, till translucent. Stir in the chili and vinegar, then stir in sugar till it dissolves.

2. Add cucumber and cook 5–7 minutes over medium heat, and reduce slightly, achieving a light glaze consistency. Season the relish with salt; let mixture cool.

3. Just before serving the relish, stir in the mint, and season with salt, to taste.

BURGERS

- 2 lbs. ground lamb
- 1 shallot, minced
- ½ Tbs. fresh ginger, minced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 Tbs. five-spice powder
- Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 4 buns
- 1 ripe tomato, sliced

1. Put the lamb, shallot, ginger, garlic, yolk, and spice powder in a bowl, and mix well. Season with salt and pepper. Divide and shape the lamb mixture into four 8 oz. burger patties. Place the patties in the refrigerator for one hour to allow the flavors to infuse.

2. Preheat a grill to medium-high and lightly oil the grate. Grill the lamb patties until they are seared on both sides and cooked through. Remove patties from the grill and set aside. Put buns on the grill, cut-side down, and toast until golden.

3. Put the lamb patties on the toasted buns, slather with the Five-Spice Aioli, pickled cucumber relish, and sliced tomato.

SOUTHERN GEORGIA GRILLED PEACHES

	TIME	15 minutes
	SERVES	4

- 3 peaches
- 2 cups baby arugula
- 2 red finger chilies, finely diced and seeded
- ¼ cup white wine vinegar
- 2 Tbs. extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 lemon
- Salt
- Pepper
- 1 shallot, finely diced

PEACHES

Take peaches, cut in half, and remove the pits. Brush peaches lightly with oil and sea salt. Lay flat sides down on grill at medium heat for approximately 3–5 minutes. Flip over and grill for another minute.

HOT SAUCE

Make the “drizzle” using the shallot, chilies, lemon juice, and vinegar.

SALAD

Dress arugula with salt, pepper, and oil.

ASSEMBLY

Take peaches off grill and lay in a bed of arugula, pit-side up. Drizzle the hot sauce generously inside peach cavities.

SOUTHWESTERN SALMON WITH CHILI CHUTNEY

TIME 1 hour
SERVES 4

- 1 cup cream, crème fraîche or sour cream
- 3 garlic cloves, chopped
- 2 tsp. grated lime zest
- 2 Tbs. fresh lime juice
- 1 Tbs. ancho chili powder
- 2 tsp. ground coriander
- 1 tsp. ground cumin
- 1/4 tsp. turmeric
- 1/4 tsp. chili de arbol powder
- 4 skin-on 8 oz. salmon fillets
- 2 Tbs. plus 1 tsp. canola oil
- Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper
- Chopped green onion, for garnish
- 2 limes, halved

1. Whisk together first nine ingredients in a baking dish. Add the salmon fillets and turn to coat in the marinade. Cover and refrigerate for at least 20 minutes and up to one hour.

2. Heat your grill to high.
3. Remove the salmon from the marinade and wipe off the excess with paper towels. Brush the salmon on both sides with 2 Tbs. of the oil and season with salt and pepper. Grill until golden brown on both sides and cooked to medium, about four minutes per side.
4. Meanwhile, brush the cut side of the limes with the remaining 1 tsp. oil and place on the grill, cut-side down, until browned, one minute.
5. Transfer the salmon to plates and garnish with green onion. Add a lime half to each plate for squeezing over the salmon and serve the chutney on the side.

CHILI CHUTNEY

- 2 dried ancho red chilies
- 2 Tbs. canola oil
- 1 small red onion, diced
- 1 garlic clove, chopped
- 4 plum tomatoes, halved and diced
- 1 tsp. dried oregano
- 2 tsp. clover honey
- Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 3 green onions, diced

1. Soak chilies in 2 cups hot water for 1/2 hour. Drain, reserving 1/4 cup of liquid; stem, seed, and dice the chilies. Blend with liquid.

2. Heat the oil in a medium saucepan over medium heat. Add the red onion and cook until soft, five minutes. Add the garlic and cook for 30 seconds. Add the chili puree, boil, and cook until thickened, five minutes.

3. Add the tomatoes and oregano and cook until softened, 10 minutes. Stir in honey and season with salt and pepper. Remove from heat and fold in green onions. Serve warm.

COLESLAW WITH CREAMY CUMIN-LIME DILL VINAIGRETTE

	TIME	2 hours
	SERVES	4-6

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Zest of 1 lime, finely grated
- 1/4 cup fresh lime juice
- 1 tsp. celery salt
- 1/2 tsp. toasted cumin seeds
- 1 Tbs. sugar
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh dill
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 1 head Napa cabbage, finely shredded
- 1 large carrot, julienned
- 1 red bell pepper, julienned
- 1 yellow bell pepper, julienned
- 1 small red onion, halved and thinly sliced

1. Whisk together mayonnaise, lime zest, lime juice, celery salt, cumin seeds, sugar, and dill in a large bowl and season with salt and pepper.

2. Add cabbage, carrot, peppers, and onion, and toss to coat in the dressing; season with salt and pepper. Cover and refrigerate for at least one hour and up to four hours before serving.

BBQ CHICKEN THIGHS

	TIME	1½ hours
	SERVES	Everyone

- Meat: Chicken thighs
- Marinade: Fowl Play from the Shed BBQ Joint (theshedbbq.com)
- BBQ Sauce: Original Shed Spread BBQ sauce from the Shed BBQ Joint (add last)
- Beer: Truck Stop Honey from Back Forty Brewing Company (12 pack per person)
- Cooking Method: Direct over charcoal that has burned to a white surface all over
- Music: Grayson Capps, "Coconut Moonshine"

1. Never grill without beer and music. It's actually illegal in Mississippi.
2. Marinate chicken thighs in a Ziploc bag. (30 mins.)
3. Start the charcoal and stare into the flames as you enjoy the danger and success of making fire.
4. Drink a beer. Add charcoal to grill carefully if your friends are watching.
5. Make sure grill and grates are really clean.
6. Place chicken, meat-side down, directly over coals.
7. Wait to turn over for good grill marks. Drink beer faster.
8. Try turning only a few times as it really gets cooking. Then leave skin side up.
9. Start putting on Shed BBQ sauce to get it to caramelize (turn to candy).
10. Remove from grill at internal temp of 165°F.
11. Let rest at least five minutes. Celebrate and drink the rest of the beer.
12. Try to get laid.

- Romaine lettuce hearts
- Red onions
- Real mayo
- Crystal hot sauce
- Garlic, minced
- Black pepper and sea salt
- Real Parmesan cheese
- Seasoned sliced almonds
- Blue cheese or ranch dressing

1. Cut lettuce hearts in half, slice onions.

2. Mix mayo, hot sauce, garlic, pepper, and salt. Spread on cut side of romaine.

3. Toss on lots of Parmesan cheese and almond slices.

4. Place romaine and onions directly over the coals.

5. Turn to make grill marks.

6. Move to cool side of grill.

Andrew Dice Clay

The comedy legend talks Vegas, leather, and starring in Woody Allen's new movie. Oh! By David Swanson

You were once the world's biggest comic, but a few years ago

you were in financial trouble, right?

Yeah, it was crazy. I went to Vegas with about $50,000 and took it to about a million dollars playing blackjack. I paid some bills, I bought some cars. Me and my wife had Vegas at our fingertips. You wanna talk about a movie like The Hangover? We lived it.

A million dollars is a lot of cash to be carrying around Vegas.

Picture this: We're driving back to L.A. with the money in the car. About two hours into the desert, I get stopped for speeding. I told my wife, if these cops tell me to get out of the car, I'm hitting the gas pedal. There was no way these guys would let us walk away with that money if they saw it. But they come back with my license and go, "Are you Dice?" And it becomes a lovefest, thank God.

And then you got Entourage.

It was like John Travolta with Pulp Fiction. I thought it was going to be a tiny role, so I was surprised by the size of it. Doug Ellin, the producer, goes, "I'm putting you in this season and wait till you see what happens." And he was right. Without Entourage, there's no Woody Allen.

So how did you end up starring in Woody Allen's movie Blue Jasmine?

Simple. I get a call from my manager saying Woody has a part he thinks I'd be great for. I walk in, talk to the guy for five minutes, and the next thing I know I'm filming. The coolest fucking guy. We talked about Brooklyn, Brighton Beach. I'd never met him before and never thought I'd work with him. Then we're hanging out on set, talking comedy.

Is it true you beat out Louis CK for your role?

Yeah, but he's still in the movie, and we're friends. You know, we were in the Carnegie Deli in New York talking about success and how hard it is to walk around in the street. And I say, "Louie, why don't you start with a hat? And don't get a hat you like. Get a hat you wouldn't wear."

Do fans bug you a lot?

They circle, and some overstep your boundaries. I mean, I was outside a restaurant a few weeks ago with my wife, and she's a lot younger than me and was dressed really hot. This guy comes over and asks for a light, looks at my wife, and tells her she looks hot. I just go, "Walk away." That's when the gloves come off. You don't disrespect my lady or my kids.

What advice do you give your two sons about showbiz?

I tell them to stay away from drugs and alcohol. Have all the girls you want, but hardcore drugs are going to wreck anyone's life. When I was coming up, I saw a lot of death.

Like Sam Kinison. You guys were rivals, right?

Our rivalry was his rivalry. We were both what you'd call rock comics, and he had that market to himself before my career blew through the roof. He couldn't handle it. One time when he was all coked up, he came looking for me, and we almost had a fight. I said, "You know if you pick your hands up to me, I'm gonna have to hurt you real bad." I know what it feels like to have my face split open, but most comics are not tough.

Who were the comics you looked up to when you were younger?

I wasn't into comics. I was more into rock stars and movie stars. When I saw comics, I thought, These guys don't understand performance. And that's why I always saw myself as the biggest comic in the world, because I was giving people something they never saw before.

But you caused a lot of controversy. Are any subjects that taboo?

I don't like making fun of real disasters, where people get killed and stuff. But when it comes to sex, I'll say anything.

Still do the old Mother Goose jokes?

I got no problem doing the classic stuff. Comics don't understand: Whatever piece it was that made you famous, give it to the fans. But I'm not just living in the past. I keep adding material. I keep reinventing myself.

You still wear the leather jackets, though. How many do you have?

Oh, hundreds. I've got a closet here with probably 200 of them, and they range from motorcycle vests to showy jackets, like Elvis and Liberace. I want to give the people something special to look at.

Breaking Bad: The Aftermath

With TV's best show blessedly returning to our sets, Maxim takes a look at what happens to real meth labs when they've been shut down... and the family that gets paid to clean them up.

by HARMON LEON • photographs by AJ MAST • illustration by TODD SCHMIDT

Rick and Donetta
Held of Crisis
Cleaning survey the wreckage of a former meth lab.

“They’ve got junkies out there who are so desperate they’ll come back and lick the walls,” says Rick Held of Crisis Cleaning as we wade through a room filled with a sea of garbage—a mirror to someone’s worst moments spilled out all over the floor.

I pick up a book among the used syringes on the coffee table. The title reads Know the Word of Jesus in 30 Days. Into the trash it goes. “That high is never duplicated,” Rick continues. “I know this is gross, but they will even try to get it out of their own urine. It’s sick.”

Team Crisis Cleaning goes to work at a former meth lab in rural Indiana.

Death and Meth

That toothless smile you see in some rural areas now is, in all likelihood, due to meth addiction. In both production and use, Indiana is the third largest meth capital in America, right behind Missouri and Tennessee, and in this small town just 25 miles southwest of Bloomington, it's Breaking Bad for real: a depressed heartland community with dilapidated houses, welcoming churches, and large STOP ABORTION signs.

The drug is known for destroying communities, but one local family-owned business has found a new meth-amphetamine-based vocation during these hard times. "We do death and meth," says Donetta Held, who, alongside her husband, Rick, runs Crisis Cleaning, the top meth lab cleanup company in Indiana. Essentially, when cops shut a lab down, the Helds come in and detoxify the place. Since 2007 the demand for their services has dramatically risen. It's a sad barometer of our economic climate: Meth is the drug of the poor, manufactured with common items found at Walmart, such as sulfuric acid, lighter fluid, and pseudoephedrine, an ingredient in common cold medications. Mix it all up in a soda bottle in the "one pot" method and you've got instant crank.

"Meth is the biggest type of cleanup we have right now," says Donetta, whose family construction company, when it started back in 1955, dealt mostly in fire and water damage. Police started approaching them at trade shows, asking if they did meth lab cleaning. Of the transition to their current focus, she still expresses disbelief. "They were asking for help! When I was a little girl working for my dad's construction business, I never thought I'd end up in meth."

Standing in front of a low-rent brick apartment complex on the edge of town, in which one apartment was recently raided by the cops after being exposed as a lab, Donetta, age 51, reflects on how much has changed in the years since her grandfather launched the family business. "We'll go through periods where we get daily phone calls," she says.

Cleaning meth labs isn't an easy job, I'm told. If certain volatile chemicals are inhaled without a mask, they could burn your lungs, to say nothing of the potential kidney ailments and respiratory problems. And those are just the medical issues: Those who cook meth sometimes booby-trap their houses, pouring gasoline into light bulbs so that if the police bust the place and flip a switch, the light fixture will explode. "Assume everything is booby-trapped," says Donetta grimly. "You never know what you'll find!"

Enough small talk—it's time to go in. Looking like a crew entering a Chernobyl reactor, we step over a large patch of dead grass, and through the front door.

Bullets and Paranoia

Meth cleanup is traditionally covered by insurance: It's considered a pollutant or act of vandalism, so the landlord gets paid for lost rent. But insurance companies have started to put methamphetamine exclusions in policies. After the police confiscate the lab equipment, they notify the local Health Department. Following this, the property has to be decontaminated by a state-certified company and test below a level of 0.5 micrograms per 100 square centimeters of meth residue.

Exploring inside, it's like being trapped in a manic guy's crazed head during his spiraling descent into the abyss—a forlorn legacy left behind in a roach-infested pit. "It's almost like Hoarders," Rick, age 49, says as we sift through trash. "You just don't know what you're going to find. I once kicked a guy by accident. He was lying on the floor coming down from meth, and I didn't see him."

Remnants of a distant past life tell a twisted story: a family photo album, foster parent papers, an American flag laid out across the bed. Rick picks up a handful of bullets, which are scattered all over the floor. "They're paranoid, they think everybody's after them," he says. "I've been in homes where they literally had guns everywhere—it's incredible! It's interesting what you go through. They do odd things—definitely odd things."

"What kind of things?" I ask, throwing a diploma for completion of an anger management course into an industrial-

Five Signs That Your Neighbor Is a Wannabe Walter White

1 He looks more like an extra from The Walking Dead than Breaking Bad: Meth users drop weight, have sunken eyes, sores, scratch marks, and decayed teeth. On second thought, the undead might actually look healthier.

2 There are burnt or dead spots in the yard from dumping chemicals. Meth addicts don't care much for lawn care!

3 Your neighbor frequently goes outside for cigarette breaks, but not to cut down on secondhand smoke; it's because he knows (or should know) that smoking in his house could ignite an explosion.

4 His trash is full of chemical and drug bottles, coffee filters, and bedsheets. Also, he dumps his garbage in your collection spot to avoid suspicion. And because meth addicts are dicks.

5 Is there a steady stream of shifty-looking tweakers frequenting his place at odd hours? Is there a guard dog? Then you might be a redne...a neighbor of a meth cook.

size garbage bag. "Just weird things they get into because they're on meth. Their brains are like Einstein's—they'll get crazy smart." He pulls out a box of wires and electronic parts kept in a bin and points to the set of hand tools scattered on the stained mattress. "Notice the tools? Their brains are working so hard," he says.

"They'll take apart a DVD player and put it back together again, then ask, 'Why did I do that?' He seems to show a strange admiration for these amateur scientists. "The police are two steps behind them because their brains are going so fast."

As we talk, the residual chemicals make their way inside my nose and eyes. A layer coats my teeth, creating meth sandpaper, and a metallic taste lingers in my mouth. Rick points at a large hole in the living room wall. "The police found some meth here; the American flag was over the hole—that's where he kept his drugs."

The five blue-suited workers continue stuffing garbage into large black trash bags—used aluminum foil, empty Mountain Dew bottles for shake-and-bake creations, pills. From under the couch, Rick pulls out a wad of foil dotted with a large blob of gray ash. "Here's your meth." Looking around at the sea of shit that became one man's life, Rick summarizes: "They're high, the highest high ever. They'll never be that high again, and they're locked into it."

Shake-and-Bake Explosions

There are three key signs that a place has been used as a meth lab: dead grass where the chemicals were dumped, a big burn pile in back, and stains on the tub and sink where chemicals were bought property and only later found out that a meth lab was there."

Even though a place has been aired out and slapped with a new coat of paint, that doesn't get rid of the fumes from the smoking and manufacturing. A house can sit for 20 years and still be contaminated. Problems arise. Residents get headaches; small children develop skin rashes. Respiratory problems are common.

"I would be scared to buy property in Greene County without testing it first,"

10-20 milligrams of meth. Throw in a cold-compress pack, a bottle of lye, two AA lithium batteries, some Coleman fuel, iodized salt, sulfuric acid, a couple of empty 20-ounce bottles, some coffee filters, a funnel, two pint-size mason jars, and you're ready to go.

Around here 75 percent of meth labs are "shake-and-bake" for individual use—the lowest level of production. All the components are simply mixed up in a plastic soda bottle, which, when shaken up, crystallizes instantly. The downside is it's extremely volatile. The mixture could explode instantly, like a bomb.

"These guys aren't chemists—they're not doing it right," Donetta sighs. Rick takes a break and adds, "A guy was doing shake-and-bake in his car. It blew up, and the windshield shot back and killed him."

Neighborhood Watch

Late model vehicles drive by and slow down. Several front doors are opened in the apartment complex, and neighbors watch as men in blue biohazard jumpsuits begin to carry garbage to a large metal Dumpster.

"Maybelle! Maybelle!" a neighbor screams from behind a screen door. A dog jumps at me, and I maneuver over to her owner, Carol, a heavyset woman

"Assume everything is booby-trapped," says Donetta. "You don't know what you'll find."

poured out. To an astute observer, the clues are as subtle as a rocket launch—syringes lying in back by the shed next to circles of lifeless yellow grass, a large propane tank, and a bucket with a hole burnt through the bottom from pouring out test cooks.

"The average person buying property doesn't think to look for these signs," Donetta explains. "People have Donetta says. "I'd say 25 percent of the vacant homes are former meth labs."

"Why is meth so popular in Indiana?" I ask while a crusty, dun-colored couch is removed from the apartment.

"It's rural," Donetta says. "It's also easy to make. You don't have to buy your drugs from anybody. If you want it, you can just go buy the ingredients."

One packet of Sudafed will make

1. A crew member cleans the living room; the coffee table was littered with dirty syringes. 2. The kitchen, where the meth was cooked. 3. Scrubbing down the living room. 4. Loading the cleaning chemicals to detox the house. 5. General filth. 6. The bedroom, which was full of glass pipes and bullets.

with hard-life tales etched on her face. Apparently, she knew the man next door.

"He started out when he and his girlfriend broke up," Carol says. "You would hear the water running all night long. And when he answered the door, he was always wearing rubber gloves. I thought that was weird."

Around Christmas time the putrid, ammonia-like smell was so pungent that residents started complaining. "When the police went to see him, it was so strong the cop was just wiping his eyes," says Carol. Looking around the yellow patches of dead grass, she picks up Maybelle and adds, "I'm glad the guy's in jail because my headaches have gone down. I used to get real bad headaches."

Back in the apartment, we check out the kitchen, the worst room yet.

A 0.5 level registers as contaminated. The kitchen clocks in at 9.73.

"They cooked it here and poured it down the drain," Rick says as we waddle through a mound of discarded blue rubber gloves. "Every time he cooked, it was a new pair of gloves; looking at those gloves, he was doing it for over eight months."

Meth fumes have caused streaking in the paint in the living room, now a bare shell. Once the carpet is ripped out—and all the garbage and syringes are removed—the deeper cleaning process can begin. The air duct system is fogged. Crystal Clean, a foam developed by the government to kill anthrax—anthrax!—is sprayed on the walls, ceilings, and floor; the chemicals bubble up, neutralizing the toxins. You let it sit for an hour, rinse it off, and you're done. No fuss! No muss! No more meth!

Although it gets all the contaminants out the first time, Indiana state law requires that four alcohol swabs need to be taken from each room to test the levels in order for the home to be certified. The swabs are put into a vial and overnighted to a lab in Washington state; the results are returned in three to five days.

So if this is how meth addicts live, why the hell do they start smoking it in the first place? "There are good people out there, and they're not thinking," Rick says. "Eighty percent of them try it and get addicted. Part of it is they're depressed at what's going on in their lives. I feel sorry for them, I really do. But there are other ways to deal with it. You're just screwing the whole purpose of life."

Best OF Every- thing

We examined all 40,000 years of recorded human history and present the DEFINITIVE, INARGUABLE LIST of the ULTIMATE PEOPLE, PLACES, and THINGS THAT EVER EXISTED. Don't agree with our picks? Let us know at Maxim.com. Actually, you know what? Don't. We're not wrong. This list is perfect, and you're a big fat dummyhead, so shut up!

Picture a monkey wearing overalls. Or drinking from a teacup. Or flinging its poo. Whatever the scenario is, you're smiling, right? (Well, maybe not if the scenario is eating your face off.)

"EYE OF THE TIGER"

Combining the headbanging simplicity of "Smoke on the Water," the sexual urgency of "Whole Lotta Love," and the visceral punch of "Cat Scratch Fever," "Eye of the Tiger" delivered a riff so perfect it inspired Rocky to embrace the once-hated Apollo Creed and punch Clubber Lang's dick off.

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN

It's not easy to stand out in a group that includes Michael Jackson, Bob Dylan, and Dan Aykroyd (what?), but the Boss did so by, apparently, taking a massive dump while recording his verse. He strained until beautiful music, and yesterday's lunch, were smeared all over the recording booth.

The Helpful Hottie

2013 Hometown
Hotties finalist

CAITLIN O'CONNOR
is now taking your questions.

What drinks should I have ready for girls at my BBQ?

—Seth Owens

Vodka, tequila, and a bunch of sweet mixers. Basically, you need anything that's strong but doesn't taste like alcohol!

Should guys wax?

—Leon Walsh

I think they should lay off down there, but waxing your chest and back hair will make some girls happy.

Are convertibles still cool?

—Roman Meyer

It depends. Red convertibles are too showy, but if it's a classic car, like my '64 Lincoln, it's still very cool.

How often is it OK to eat fast food?

—Jonathan Boyd

As much as you want, as long as you work out twice as many times as you ate it that week. So if you had it twice, you've got to hit the gym four times. That formula works for me!

Should I invite my colleagues to my birthday party?

—Brian Fletcher

Just the single ones, so nothing messy happens!

Booty Call of Nature

Summer's in full swing, so it's time to shed your clothes and get naughty in the great outdoors. Read on as women share their wildest stories. (And keep an eye out for poison ivy!)

by STEPHANIE RADVAN

→ Between the steamy temperatures and overflowing margarita pitchers that come along with summer, so does the best sex of the year. "There's something extremely erotic about summer," says Good Vibrations staff sexologist Carol Queen. "You see more skin on hot days, which can make women more aware of their own attractiveness." So while things are heating up, there's no better place to take advantage of your girl's carnal desires than the great outdoors. We spoke to plenty of women who will reassure you that just 'cause she insists on washing her hair every day, it doesn't mean she isn't yearning to get dirty.

CONNECT WITH NATURE

"On my first visit to my fiancé's hometown in Northern California, he took me on a hike to a field with tall grass and a stunning view. He started rubbing my lower back, and I got chills all over my body. I undressed and lay on his sweater, and he got on top. I've never had such an intense orgasm from going at it missionary."

—Linda*, 27

"Last year my boyfriend and I took a lot of day trips to the woods a few hours from our place. Sadly that eliminated the fun of hotel room sex, which I pointed out to him during one of our walks. He turned to me and said, 'So what are we going to do about it?' He picked me up, and I could feel he was excited, so I begged him to take me right there. I ended up leaning on a tree while he took me from behind for the hottest doggy-style romp ever."

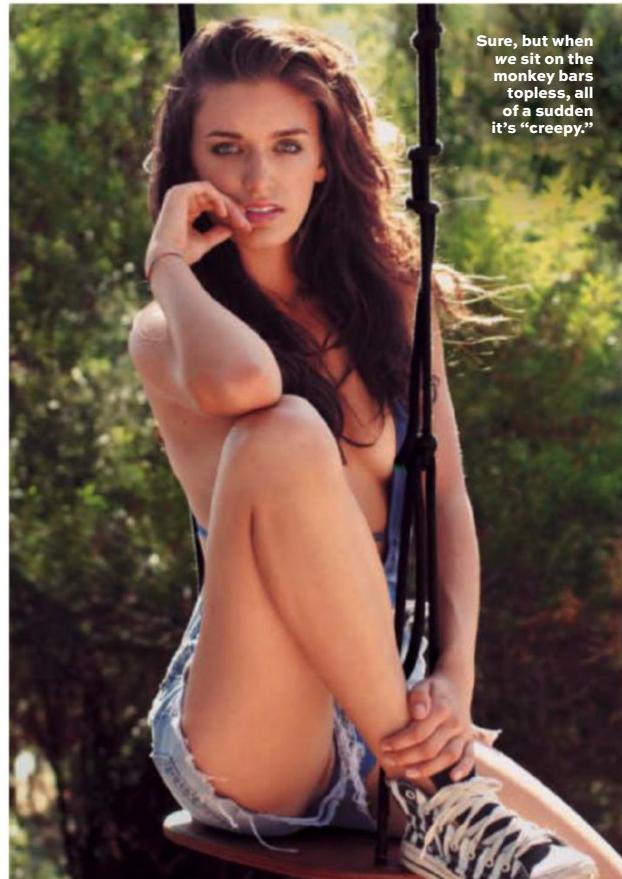

—Janie, 25

"One summer I went on a camping trip with a group of friends, including a guy I was into. We'd been flirting all day, and after dark he snuck into my tent. We started kissing but decided it would be more comfortable to do it outside. We took a blanket to a clearing away from the tents and spent the whole night hooking up. We knew that our friends could catch us, but really that was part of the thrill."

—Natalie, 24

GET WET

"I invited my college boyfriend to my parents' lake house, and they insisted we sleep in separate bed-

Sure, but when we sit on the monkey bars topless, all of a sudden it's "creepy."

rooms. One day as we watched the sunset from the water, we looked at each other, and I could tell we were thinking the same thing. He picked me up, and I wrapped my legs around his waist and pushed my bikini bottoms to the side for easy access. It was the best quickie I've ever had."

—Nisha, 22

"Sex on the beach is far from overrated. Every year my boyfriend and I take a tropical vacation, and as soon as we arrive we'll head to a remote area or sneak around after dark to get it on. There's no better way to kick off a holiday than by letting go of your inhibitions and getting it on in the sand to the sound of crashing waves."

—Tara, 29

STAY CLOSE TO HOME

"I moved in with my boyfriend last July, and to show him one of the benefits, I was lying out in the garden to tan in my thong and nothing else. It didn't take long for him to come outside and get on top of me. The feeling of him pressing against me and the sun and the grass on my skin made me so wet we didn't bother with foreplay—and we didn't have to worry about anyone watching."

—Karen, 27

"My parents' friends had a party at their beach house, and I spent the whole evening flirting with their nephew. As the guests left, we headed to the deck and started making out on one of the secluded lawn chairs. I slipped my panties off underneath my dress, unzipped his pants, and straddled him. We had to be very slow and quiet, but the sound of the ocean and the breeze added so much to the experience."

Katy Perry

We were children of the '80s, so Smurfette was one of the first females who made us feel smurfy in our smurfareas. Thus it stands to reason that the modern incarnation of our first flame is voiced by Katy Perry, whose crazy curves could turn Gargamel into a drooling idiot (well, even more of a drooling idiot). Katy rightfully earned the No. 1 spot on 2010's Hot 100 list. Here's a fond look back at her 2011 cover shoot. Makes you want to take her back to your mushroom house for a romantic night of smurfing, doesn't it?
